MEAT AND BREAD.

A Plentiful Supply from this Market yesterday evening we called at t dag house of Mesers. Whitaker & Ryan. and learned that they were now preparing t begin their alsoghtering of hogs, having nearly finished work upon cattle. They have done the largest commission business ever transacted in the West, and thousan of barrels of mess beef, with hides, &c., have been sent from their depot to the warehous

The pork packing will commence at a early day, and the slaughter continue unremittedly during the season. It is a sharp distance from the packing house to the flouring mills of Hensley, Ske ton & Co., but we were more than repaid for the trip, through the keen and bracing atcaphere last evening.

These gentlemen are turning out hundred of sacks of flour daily, and shipping them to all points of the compass. Night and day es are whirling, and the only danger of stopping comes from a lack of grain, for the supply is now running short.

Their flour has an unrivalled reputation and is rapidly consumed in all the markets which they are able to supply.

And the same may be said of the brane ufactured by Messrs. Plummer & North, at their mills in the northern portion of the city, which were visited afterwards, and where we found flour in abundance, a splen-did set of machinery, stones, &c., and busiworked to the very top-notch and more use demanded. Then too, they told us only the failure in a suppy of grain three oldest dailies in the State. Our daily and grown in his garden in this city.—Manhattan ness worked to the very top-notch and more that only the failure in a supply of grain could check them in their rapid labors, in supplying their customers at home and a distance.

THE PRAYER. A pair of dimpled knees bent on the floor,
Two little dove-like eyes half shut in sleep,
A little gold-ringed head—this through the door
I hear—asking the Lord 'a chrystal soul to keep.'
The crimson cheeks seem by dawn's fingers staned,
The dimpled hands, clasped by the angels seem,
As sunset's amber o'er her head is rained.
Kindling her curls with many a tapering gleam.

Wreathed are her tiny teet with stories old,
Till roce leaf atmospheres, methinks I sec,
Enwrap them in their soft ethereal fold,
With love's protection, to the dimpled knee;
For still the baby songs and tales will please,
As when at first, like bits from alken skein,
She tried to knot them, alting on my knees,
In baby accents, into threads again. The little velvet hips just parted are,
Through which the white winged thoughts troof
forth to rise,
As, through an opening bud, performes afar
Invisibly are waited to the skies.

As through an opening bud, performes afar
Invisibly are waited to the skies.

Where her down couch my darling's crept,
Where her bright curis, like jonquils in the snow
Gleam out, as if the sunbeams there had swept
A little rift for such sweet flowers to grow.

THE LEGEND OF POTATO CRERK.

From the Tribune, Big yellow butterflies were wheeling about in the drowsy summer air, and hovering above the moist little sand bars of Potato above the moist little sand bars of Potato Creek. A shady dell, wrapped in the hot lull of August, sent up the spires and domes of its walnut and poplar trees, clearly defined and sheeny, while underneath the forest roof the hazel and wild rose bushes had wrung themselves into dusky mats. The late violets bloomed, here and there, side by side with those wax-like yellow blossoms, called by the country folks "butter and eggs." Through this dell Potato Creek meandered fantastically, washing bare the

"Yes you do, too! 'Twas your fistle-oed hoss. That 'aregal 'at stays over there is havin' a man wash 'im and doctor 'im.' Sammy winked and hitched up his pants as

When, after a few minutes the 'Squire came in, the widow slept, the sweet air still "Purty as the gal, almost," he said to himself. "Well, she tuck my hose, and I 'spose it's fair 'at I should take these 'ere jim-cracks of hern. Howsomever, I'll pocket 'em anyhow."

The argument seemed logical and satisfactory, so, with a furtive glance over his shoulder, he crammed the articles into the capacious side pocket of his pants.

"Now, then, I must go home and have my chill and fever, hang it! 'Spose I'll allus have 'em."

After he left the shade of the dell Zach had a hot walk across a big clover field before he reached the low house where he lived with his widowed mother. In a short time his chill set in, and it was a fearful one. His teeth chattered, and his boffy frame rattled like a bag of dry wind. After it had shaken him thus for nearly an hour, his brother Sammy, a lad of ten years' standing, came in with a jug of buttermilk, brought from a heighbor's.

"Mammy, 'ere's yer buttermilk,' said he, setting his jug on the floor. "Shakin like forty, Zach,' he added, booking lugubiously at his big brother, and changing countenance and grinning broadly he continued—"Bet ye a dollar ye can't guess what I seed over to Squire Marin's."

"No, and I don't keer a cuss; so don't bother me." was the availant seals.

Arriet Decay When a plant or a tree begins to decay it must needs die. It cannot be revitalized. But it is not so with human beings. A human ruis can be repaired, strengthened, restored, though a brown leaf or a withered blade of grass can never be made green again. In the autumn of life, or even in its green again. In the autumn of life, or even in its winter, when nature scenas to be giving way under the pressure of years, it is still possible to retard the progress of decay, and to lend to age more than its wonted vigor. As a means of promoting this object, Hostetters Stomach Bitters is unquestionably the most potent of all restoratives.
